Students today face a lot of pressure in their lives. One of the biggest pressures comes from schoolwork. They often have to deal with a large amount of homework, constant exams, and the desire to achieve high grades. This can lead to stress and anxiety. Besides, students must balance their time between studying and extracurricular activities, as well as their social relationships. Sometimes, the expectations from family and teachers make them feel even more pressured to perform well.

Additionally, preparing for the future, such as choosing a university or a career path, is another major concern. Many students feel confused and worried about making important decisions for their future at a young age. To reduce pressure, students need to learn how to manage their time, maintain a healthy lifestyle, and seek support from family, friends, and teachers when necessary.
